

Describe something you own which is very important to you.

You should say:

- Where you got it from?
- How long have you had it?
- What do you use it for?
- And explain why it is important to you.

I would like to tell you about one of my material possessions which is very important to me. It is my personal laptop. My father and I bought it about 2 years ago in a computer shop in Ha Noi. At that time, I was about to travel to the UK to study abroad and therefore having a laptop was highly crucial for my study and daily life.

My laptop is called Vaio and it is produced by Sony, a technology giant of Japan. The primary colour of my laptop is black, although certain parts of it are white and grey. Its weight is more than 2 kilograms and it has an internal memory of nearly 500 GB. Like the majority of other laptop versions, my Sony Vaio supports Wifi, Bluetooth, USB, memory readers and wireless mouse.

I use my laptop for my school work and daily-life activities. With regards to school work, the laptop helps me create presentations, finish homework under Word file and send it to my teachers electronically. It also gives me Internet access which enhances my understanding about world economies and cultures. In addition to this, my laptop is also an ideal way for me to chat with my friends on social media platforms and get news.

The first reason why my laptop is so important to me is that it enables me to connect with my friends and family in Vietnam while we are so far from each other, geographically speaking. Secondly, my Sony Vaio partly is a key for me to achieve good grades at school. And finally, the laptop with Internet access improves my knowledge and other vital ICT skills.
